The future is theirs: F.G.M. Class of '88

'The past is ours to remember, the future is ours to discover.' So said the 43 members of F. G. Miller High School's Class of '88, at their graduation exercises last Saturday.

The long procession of beautifully attired young ladies and handsome young men filed into the streamer-decked gymnasium to the strains of the Theme From The Breakfast Club. A full house was on hand to greet them as they took their places on this, their day of days.

Dwayne Vogel gave a moving invocation, asking the Lord's blessing on the graduands in their future lives.

Principal Bob Tredger asked all to 'be concerned about our future—we all have to live there.' It is his belief that 'the past shapes the future,' but noted that different people react in different ways to past occurrences when relating these to their future plans. He told the graduands that 'the final forming of your character lies in your own hands. Parents...teachers...friends can't live your life for you.' He exhorted them to 'reach out boldly and with confidence' but not to forget to temper these with gentleness, kindness and understanding.

Musical guest, Judy Dubelt of Myrnam, sang 'The Greatest Love of All' and the upbeat 'We're Headed For the Future', and later returned to serenade the parents with 'Too Old To Die Young.'

Each grad in turn was introduced with a brief biographical sketch by Christine Wozniak and Darwin Roscoe, as they came forward to receive their school pins from Superintendent of Schools Ted Cabaj and scrolls from School Board member John Hutton. Darwin Roscoe spoke of his classmates as 'a class full of memories...of dances, going to the show, volleyball trips, classrooms, friendships...all our friendships...and the love shared by the Class of '88'

Ken Hanson gave the valedictory address, speaking with great feeling about the sadness of having to say goodbye, and how 'this must be taken in our stride...as we discover the joys of Today's the day--PARTICIPACT!

This is it! Today is Sweat'n'Sneaker Day, the day when Elk Point residents will take on St. Paul, as well as communities across the country, in the Great Fitness Challenge.

The aim of the game is to take part in some form of physical activity for at least 15 minutes today, and then to phone in to the Town Office (724-3810) or the Recreation Office (724-4409) to register your activity. At 11:00 p.m., all the figures will be tabulated and the percentage of physically active residents determined.

Downtown events! From 11:30 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m., 50th Street between 50th Avenue and 49th Avenue (between the Co-op and Capitol Drugs) will be blocked off to provide a site for the following fitness events:

- 11:30: Coffee Cup Relay
- 11:45: Type-Off
- 12:00: No-Bounce Aerobics Demonstration
- 12:15: Elk Point Skipping Team
- 12:30: Paper Clip Flip

Free Golf

Elk Point Golf and Country Club has donated the use of their course for the day, so everyone may enjoy a FREE round of golf, and also have a chance to see their recently opened clubhouse facilities.

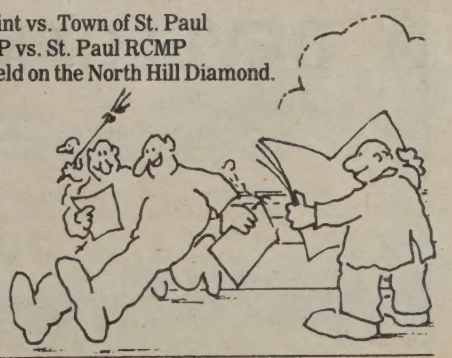

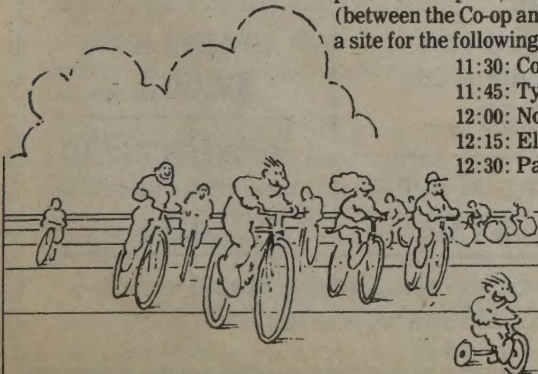

There's something planned for everyone—so put on your favorite sweats and lace up your sneakers, and come on down to HELP US WIN THE CHALLENGE!

- 6:30: Golf Demonstration
- 7:00: Elk Point Ukrainian Dancers
- 7:30: Elk Point WunderDogs
- 8:00: Water Balloon Toss, Stinky Sneaker Judging
- 8:30: Racewalking Demonstration
- 9:00: Line Dance, followed by a street dance

Free hot dogs will be served to the first 350 people in attendance at the evening activities, while juice will be served at the noon-hour gathering.

Baseball action!

- 5:00: Town of Elk Point vs. Town of St. Paul
 - 7:00: Elk Point RCMP vs. St. Paul RCMP
- Both games will be held on the North Hill Diamond.

Bottle Drive - Sat., May 28

9:00 a.m. to 12 noon. If not home, please leave bottles at front door.
Elk Point Minor Ball Club welcomes your support.

new friends, careers, marriage and families.' He asked his fellow graduates to 'always give your best' and quoted former U. S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower as saying 'do your job well, and make everyone sorry when you leave.' Hanson added that the way in which the Class of '88 was able to overcome the obstacle of the lengthy teachers' strike which had marred their senior year, indicates that they are well equipped to handle whatever the future may bring.

Hanson thanked the parents of the graduands, the teachers, friends and community for all their help and support through the years, and asked his classmates to 'keep your past very close to your hearts.'

Grad Class Presidents Tracy Ewasiuk and Bryce Lorenson thanked all those whose efforts had made the graduation ceremonies possible, on behalf of 'the Kindergarten Class of '75-76'. Roxanne Gascon presented the Class Presidents with gifts of appreciation.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was former F. G. Miller teacher Bob McCue, who taught the grads back in Grade 8. McCue said 'some made it to graduation with their natural ability, some by hard work, but they made it.' 'We all have dreams,' he noted, 'some big, some small. 'Live those dreams, don't lose them and live with I could have; I should have for the rest of your lives.'

McCue said he himself has lived his dream, that of being a professional musician, but that 'now it's time to move on' to a future which includes marriage, parenthood and a teaching career.

He acknowledged that 'many of you here are afraid' but advised them not to be. 'If you try and fail-big deal. If you don't try, you'll never know what you can do.' He told the students to 'listen to your parents. They have made mistakes and learned from them.' He also urged the parents to 'be there for them...but don't discourage them from their dreams.'

Following the playing of God Save The Queen by Debbie-Lou Huskins, the graduands left the stage to the Recssional, 'Young and Innocent.'

At the evening banquet held in the Elks Hall and catered by the O.O.R.P., the Toast to the Graduands was given by Mrs. Pentek, with a reply by Tracy Ewasiuk. David Anderson toasted the parents, with the reply by Henry Roscoe. Albert Lim toasted the teachers, with the reply by Ray Hellquist.

Deputy Mayor Steve Shmyr brought greetings from the Town of Elk Point, while Debbie-Lou Huskins brought wishes from the RCMP. Carmen Brodziak represented the School Board Administration, with Bill Ference representing the School Board. MLA John Drobot brought greetings from the Province.

Bob Tredger had the final word of the day, reminding the Class of '88 that 'you have earned the chance, the right to make something of yourselves and of the world you live in.'

GUEST SPEAKER — Bob McCue urged the grads to live their dreams.

No provincial drought -aid payout for area farmers

The provincial government is not prepared to provide a direct financial payout to area farmers stricken by drought. The disappointing news came in the form of a phone call from Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga to farmer Louis Jubinville last week.

Jubinville, a member of a Goodridge area farmers' group which has been actively lobbying the government for assistance, said while the call is to be followed up with a formal letter outlining the decision and the reasons behind it, the basic message was a disappointing one.

"We're basically disappointed. We felt there was an urgent need and that we had presented it to a maximum of our capacity," Jubinville told the Journal.

On April 27, 400 farmers crowded into the Goodridge Community Hall and presented Elzinga with a brief asking the provincial government to financially assist farmers for the losses incurred in the 1987 crop year. Specifically, the farmers proposed that there either be a direct payout of $2,000 per quarter or that an interest-free loan of up to $25,000, with payback over a five-year period in five equal payments, be made available.

Jubinville believes the government had a problem with the boundary outlined by the farmers' group. He maintained the boundary lines were drawn only so the need could accurately be reflected. A survey proving the impact of the drought was taken within the boundary and presented to Elzinga.

"My gut feeling is they had a problem with the boundaries. But a generalization of a large area does not reflect the same thing. When you create boundaries you create enemies; if you don't it's not practical."

Jubinville also tends to believe the area wasn't large enough.

"If it was five times the size they would have reacted."

The only action that has been taken by the government as a direct result of the April 27 meeting, is the extension of the Alberta Water Supplies Assistance Program back to January 1, 1988 from April 1, 1988. This program financially assists farmers with the hauling of water, digging of dugouts and drilling of water wells. The extension of this $20 million program is expected to cost the government an additional $3 million.

According to Jubinville, Elzinga expressed disappointment that the number of farmers making use of the forage crop insurance program put into effect earlier this year, isn't as high as was expected.

Government figures for the area north of Highway 16, which includes this immediate area, show 49 per cent of the farmers have taken the insurance.

But Jubinville doesn't believe the figure accurately represents the true picture because the serious drought conditions occurred in pockets. He pointed to the area east of Bonnyville, which received adequate moisture last year.

"My assumption is it's probably about 75 per cent (that have taken advantage of forage insurance) in our (Goodridge) area," Jubinville said.

Despite the bad news, Jubinville believes the farmers' group did achieve two points.

"We got the equality of the (forage crop) insurance plan, which is a big plus. And, the government is well aware there is a drought situation. They're not saying there isn't and they've said they're going to monitor this area.

"We lost on the demands for last year, but the door is open for this year."

MLA John Drobot said it is "very difficult to consider a direct payout" to farmers.

"When you look at the drought map, it goes all the way into southern Alberta."

He said the drought situation extends into the prairie provinces and that discussions with the federal government regarding the situation are ongoing.

"Any new drought program would have to be a joint federal/provincial government program," he said.

GRAD CLASS PRESIDENTS — Bryce Lorenson and Tracy Ewasluk expressed thanks to all who had made the Graduation festivities possible, "from the Kindergarten Class of '75-'76."

Return those surveys!

The Elk Point Municipal Recreation and Cultural Board is presently conducting a Group, Club and Organization Survey to assist in revisions to the Recreation Master Plan.

Copies of the survey have been circulated to all groups in the area for their input. If your group has received a survey and has not yet returned it to the Town Office or Recreation Office, please do so by May 31, or call 724-4409 and arrange for the survey to be picked up by the Recreation staff.

A door-to-door survey of residents' input on recreation needs is also being conducted at the present time.

All together now-- PARTICIPACT!

The big day is here: it's time to get out and prove that Elk Point has a higher percentage of physically active people than any other community across the country--especially than our neighboring towns.

Of COURSE we can do it! All we have to do is get out there and get at it!

Maybe we can't all run, or play baseball, or play a round of golf. Maybe we can't do aerobics, or lift weights, or skip rope. But there ARE some activities that just about everyone can take part in. How about walking? If you are in a wheelchair, wheeling your chair around counts. If you're in a rocking chair, how about rocking for 15 minutes? Need to mow your lawn, rather than going up town to see the events? Mowing your lawn (unless you are blessed with a riding mower) is excellent exercise! So is trimming your hedge. Even washing your car could be considered exercise--or taking your dog for a walk, or your kids to the playground. Pushing a stroller counts. So does hanging your wash on the clothesline, if you have enough to keep you busy for 15 minutes.

Just look at your daily schedule, and we'll bet that you can find something that qualifies as exercise. All you have to do is keep at it for 15 minutes and then phone the Town Office, at 724-3810, or the Rec Office, at 724-4409, to register your activity.

Even the desk-bound can take part: come up to Main Street at noon hour and take part in the Type-Off or the Paper Clip Flip. You could surprise yourself with your prowess!

If you've left it until evening, and you think it's too late to take part, remember that the Line Dance goes at 9:00 p.m. on Main Street, with a short street dance to follow. Dancing is great exercise, and fun, too. You have until 11:00 p.m. to register your activity, remember. Come on Elk Point, let's show Canada how to PARTICIPACT!

MARSHMARGOLDS BLOOM FROM MID-MAY TO MID-JUNE — But they tend to hide deep in the swamps, sometimes along sloppily fencelines, by a country road.

They can be successfully transplanted to a shady, damp spot.

It still goes by too fast

By Irene Magnusson
Alberta Trails

Possibly everything goes by too fast. The trains, the screaming jets, school days, the chance to do something good for someone, childhood--such speed to whiz them by. The years, dragging slow when we are kids, then pick up speed, until they are whistling by so fast we hardly have time to turn around and another one has gone.

But the part of the year that sails by the very fastest, and totally without regard for our wishes, is Spring. I used to think, when we were farming, and there was always so very much to do in the spring, with the calves and piglets and working the land, cleaning the seeds, coaxing the reluctant old machinery to do their turn one more time--run, run, run...and I would think 'Someday this will be finished, we will have some time to LOOK at the blue sky, watch the birds around us, see all the blossoms come, go to the lakes and listen to the waves lap in--or just sit and soak up the warm sun for an hour or two.'

Of course, now and then, we walked through the woods, and saw the violets, the wild onions, the tiny white and purple bog orchids, and as we circled the fields we could see the drifts of white blossoms here and there, as they showed for their brief week or so. But I longed to stand in them for hours, or to walk and look, here and here and here, wherever they would be, to smell their scents, and touch them with my hand. And time to enjoy them, and absorb them into my being.

Still, someone had to hold on to the tractor wheel, or drive some staples, pump the gas, pull the weeds, plant the potatoes. And the golden days of spring streaked past, as they do today, no way to slow them down, to hold them fast while we savor their exquisite beauty.

So how come I still 'have no time'--at least not ENOUGH time--to keep up to this rushing spring? So far, even with the grass coming so slowly, I haven't found time to drag that weed-bar around, so my scrubby grass is full of scrubby dandelions.

And if I haven't done it (as well as dig up all those that are now blooming) by the time you read this, my yard will be full of white heads, including me.

I stopped one day on my way home from another of those countless trips to town, and walked into the swamp to see how the marsh marigolds were coming. I could see a few from the road, but the best ones usually are not to be seen unless you go right in there, behind the sweeping spruce branches, to where the little stream runs most springs. The stream is certainly not running this year, but there were pools of dark murky water, and yes, a few marigolds were bunching up there, getting ready to 'do their thing'. The clumps were much smaller than usual, and far fewer, and were not in bloom yet, there in the dark shaded area. Those near the road, which were out, had half-size flowers, and not many per clump. So I guess Nature has enough sense to practise some reproduction control when conditions are not favorable to feed a multitude. I will go back in a few days, when the rest are in flower, and perhaps the bog violets will favor me with a few of their delicate blue blossoms.

There is this deck out on the side of the house, just now in need of paint. Had it built a few years ago, to replace the smaller one we had there, and which was getting rotten. Neither one wore out from over-use. Clif sat out there sometimes, reading or just resting. My own main use of the old one was as a place to sit and shell peas, or clean berries--in winter, to sweep the snow off of.

I truly do envy people who can sit and watch the world go by. Have they conquered the art of "having enough time?" Perhaps I'm secretly a 'slavedriver', and since I have no other slave, I am inclined to drive myself? If that is so, then I'm a failure at that, too, as I still don't get anything much done.

So now another couple of days have gone by, dark with threatening clouds (or should that be 'promising' clouds?) and cool winds. No rain fell. The leaves have grown larger, the grass a hair longer. Habit is strong, so we plant our gardens, and the farmers plant their seeds, but the hopes for a good crop are very thin. Perhaps some of us can water our gardens, but we can't water the whole countryside, only the winds of chance can do that.

There are still some 'good' points to notice, among all the contrary, dismal outlooks of a super-dry spring. So far I have only seen one mosquito. And he was weak and tired and didn't have the gumption to bite. So far, in my territory, I have not seen a single forest tent caterpillar. I am also sure the slugs will not be a problem this year--they need much moisture to get happy, fat and sassy.

Have also not seen many bees, and that is not a good thing, because we do need bees. I don't know if the lack of moisture has anything to do with it, but there are also not many flies around, and, in digging around in the garden, I've seen very few earthworms--so what are the robins going to survive on? I hope they like ants. There is a very good crop of ants in my woods, mounds around every semi-dead tree. I have also noticed something I haven't noticed before. Every ant hill has an insulating layer of poplar tree fuzz carefully spread over top. Who told them to do that?

The saskatoons and cherries have opened their blooms, and look so nice, here in my yard and wherever any have been allowed to remain. We can certainly not expect any great crops off them, unless it rains continually all through June, but I think I am not alone in being fearful of another late-May snow-and-frost, coming as it did last year just in time to ruin all the lilac flowers and spruce buds, etc.

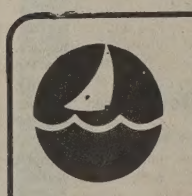

Reading back over that last page, it looks to me that I DID find a little time to look around at the wild flowers and such. And I've put the lawn chairs out on the deck, even washed off the dust of last summer--and once I get the lawn mowed, and the garden finished and the dandelions mistreated, and if I can forget about the rest of the housecleaning planned, and try not to clean out the basement, and certainly not the garage (!)--who knows? Maybe I'll find time to sit out on that deck yet. Especially if I keep my eyes looking up at the gorgeous blue sky, the quivering green leaves, the robins darting about their affairs, the huge red-shinned hawk hovering far overhead in great slow circles...If I look up--not down--I won't see how badly the deck needs that coat of paint, and the streaks on my windows, and...

by Cardinal

May 22-May 28

Welcome to the World of Astrology. All of the signs have positive and negative characteristics that are corresponding sides of the same coin. Aries is energetic and impatient. Taurus is patient and stubborn. Gemini is versatile and fickle. Cancer is nurturing and clinging. Leo is positive and arrogant. Virgo is neat and fussy. Libra is diplomatic and vacillating. Scorpio is well-organized and manipulating. Sagittarius is independent and an opportunist. Capricorn is prudent and miserly. Aquarius is ingenious and erratic. Pisces is intuitive and a dreamer.

ARIES: Do something creative. You'll be surprised at the results. Do some serious thinking about improving your health habits. A meeting with someone leads to thoughts of romance.

TAURUS: Patience will be needed when dealing with home problems. Pleasure derived from extravagance could cost dearly. It's time to reach some decisions regarding the work you do.

GEMINI: An argument with a neighbor leaves you upset. Don't let your feelings overflow and hurt your family. Avoid gambling. Your judgement is unreliable this week.

CANCER: Concentrate on what you value and put your beliefs into action. Communication is erratic and unreliable. Reach decisions on your own. Discussion will be fruitless.

LEO: Your mind is busy with ideas for self improvement. Don't overspend on plans you may abandon next week. Instead, keep yourself busy with exciting, original activities.

VIRGO: A friend's weakness is revealed to you through a broken promise. You have a glow this week that could lead to romance. Buy yourself a gift to boost your ego even higher.

LIBRA: You are able to influence your friends to your way of thinking. However, don't be too optimistic until you can see the bottom of the well. Much will be revealed in quiet conversation.

SCORPIO: Your future success depends on an unsullied reputation, so consider seriously the impact of your behavior on future accomplishments. A change in mood could release you from the prison of your emotions.

SAGITTARIUS: Those in college will find much accomplished through patience. Indecision will fade away and reveal the road to success. Don't count on intuition. There are too many fingers in the pie.

CAPRICORN: Take into consideration the beliefs of others when explaining your ideas. Consider seriously asking for professional advice. If you come to the right decisions, you will receive the accolades of those you admire.

AQUARIUS: It's a good time to talk to partners about financial matters. It could help to banish indecision. Do some shopping for that future big event. Buy something original.

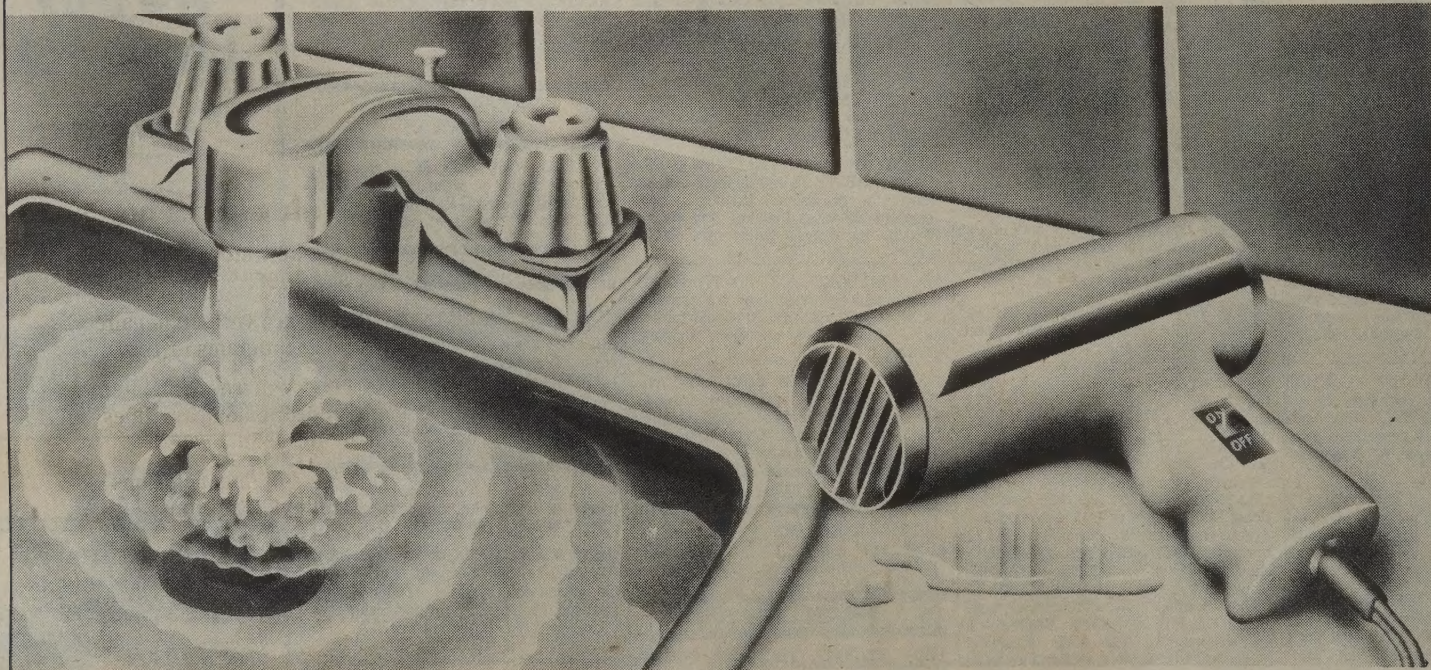

PISCES: The work you do for others goes smoothly if pre-planned. Worry over legal matters is causing erratic behavior. Decide which course to take regarding financial obligations

Deadly Combination

Keep hair-raising experiences out of the bathroom.

A plugged-in hair dryer and a sink full of water is a deadly combination.

Electrical appliances and water just don't mix. Whether it's in the bathroom, kitchen or the laundry room, keep small appliances away from water. And make sure to dry your hands before using any electrical appliance.

Only you can make your home a safe place. Start now.

When it comes to electrical safety - don't take chances.

Drinking and driving is a criminal offence.

THE HEAT IS ON and you should know that police forces across Alberta who operate CHECKSTOP and other impaired driving programs will be intensifying their activities to target drinking and driving this summer.

Drink and drive and you can be sure that CHECKSTOP will get you.

Attention: Drivers who drink and drive

You Will Get Caught! 430,495 vehicles were stopped at over 27,400 CHECKSTOPS in 1987.

You Will Be Charged! 19,029 Albertans were charged with an impaired driving offence through CHECKSTOP and other programs in 1987.

You Will Be Punished! 18,123 Albertans were convicted of impaired driving offences and had their licence suspended, paid heavy fines or were imprisoned for this criminal offence in 1987.

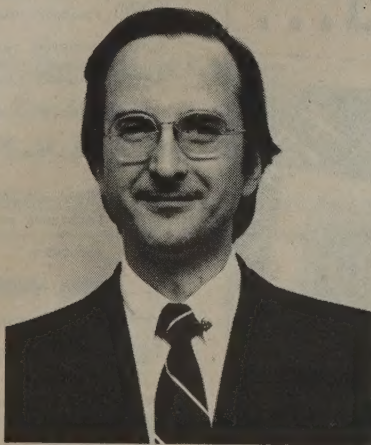

You Might End Up Dead! Almost 27% of drivers in fatal collisions were drinking prior to the collision. Another 12% of those involved in accidents that led to serious injury were also drinking prior to the accident.

New Legislation Introduced

New legislation has been recently introduced which provides for longer sentences, increased fines, penalties to persons who allow suspended drivers to operate their vehicle, and the immobilization of vehicles of impaired drivers.

The message is loud and clear. THE HEAT IS ON — DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE.

Historical mural park design

PROPOSED PARK DESIGN — The Elk Point Historical Society has released plans for their proposed Historical Park, directly west of Elk Point Public Library, which will house the 100-foot long historical mural, now nearing completion under the skillful brush of Billie Lynne Milholland. The park features curving pathways, benches, picnic tables, a horseshoe pitch, and various plantings of trees and flowers. The concept was designed by Kipen Gibbs Landscape Architects Ltd.

WHAT'S NEWS

at the Library

This week is Canada Fitweek, inspiring our Participation Challenge. If you read last week's newspaper, you will have discovered that there are a number of activities going on today, including a baseball game, free rounds of golf at the Elk Point Golf and Country Club, a demonstration of low impact aerobics, and a street dance later in the evening. If you are a beginning athlete and would like to improve your skills or even a well-seasoned pro, we have a variety of books that might be of interest to you.

The library carries a large number of overall health and fitness books. If you are interested in team sports, we carry everything from Soft Ball Rules in Pictures by G. Jacobs McCrory and the Encyclopedia of Sports by Frank G. Menke to How to Play Winning Basketball by George Smith. We also offer fitness and sport books for the individual. If you like to spend time alone getting rid of excess energy or competing against other individuals, try reading Golf by Bob MacDonald for the beginning golfer, Jogging and Running by Richard B

Lyttle or Jane Fonda's Workout book. Whatever you do, get out there and participate! And if your major area of participation seems to be gobbling down the free hotdogs they are offering to the early birds, we also have a vast number of books on dieting and nutrition.

New books

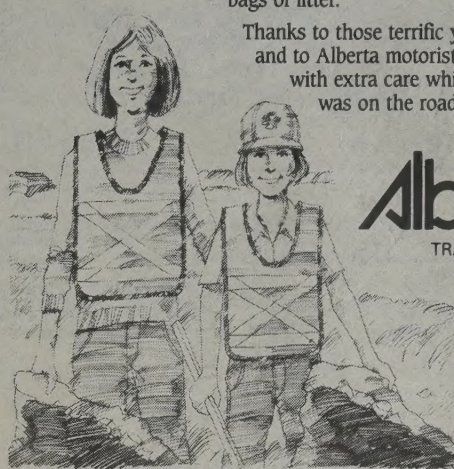

This week we also have some new arrivals in the children's section by Lucy Kincaid. If you like the classics that we all heard as children and want your children to enjoy them too, here are eight books from the Now-You-Can-Read series in large type for the first time readers. This series includes Three Little Pigs, The Gingerbread Man, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Little Red Hen, The Ugly Duckling, Rapunzel, Little Red Riding Hood, and Jack and the Beanstalk.

A BIG THANKS TO ALBERTA'S YOUNG VOLUNTEER CLEAN-UP CREW

All Albertans owe a thank you to the 10,636 volunteers from Alberta's 4-H Clubs, Junior Forest Wardens and other youth groups who took part in this year's annual highway clean-up campaign.

This year's campaign, cleaned 9,228 kilometres of Alberta primary highway and resulted in the removal of 67,343 bags of litter.

Thanks to those terrific young people and to Alberta motorists who drove with extra care while our "crew" was on the road.

Building your child's communication skills

"What can we do to help our child develop good speech and language skills?" That is a question that parents often ask a Speech-Language Pathologist.

Perhaps the single most important thing that parents can do to encourage good communication skills is to be a 'responsive parent'. Observe your child and follow his initiations with sensitive appropriate responses. Depending on your child's interest and language level you can:

- imitate your child's actions and words;
- label what your child is doing, feeling, or wanting;
- model the correct language form;

- expand on your child's message or topic.

Communication is a two way process - take turns talking with your child. Provide some information, then watch and 'wait' for your child's response. If he does not spontaneously follow your lead, signal your child to take a turn.

Provide an environment that offers experiences conducive to language learning - records/tapes, art and writing material, clothes and supplies for imaginative play, books, etc. Through play children develop knowledge and reasoning skills so important for future academic success. Take your child places to expand his awareness of the world around him.

Limit television watching as it encourages children to be passive. If you must watch T.V., use the ideas to stimulate discussion or activities. Ask questions to see if your child can guess what will happen next or explain other actions a T.V. character could have taken.

More and more evidence suggests that children who are good readers have been read to as preschoolers. Join a library to have access to a variety of books. Let your child help choose the books to read. When you read to your child show enthusiasm and delight. Never turn reading into a chore! Periodically stop and ask your child questions to stimulate discussion of the book's events.

Assure that your child's hearing is adequate. Children who don't hear, often lose interest in listening and talking.

Above all, remember that learning comes with consistent encouragement. Praise what your child has done with a smile, a pat or a hug. Be prepared to modify your interactions with your child to provide successful language learning experiences. Have fun with your child. To children there is a big difference between 'wanting' to learn versus 'having' to learn.

Children are all individuals and do not develop speech and language skills at the same rate. However, if you are concerned about your child's development, or have any doubts about his ability to hear, please contact the North Eastern Alberta Health Unit Office nearest you for more information on speech-language or hearing assessments.

MAY DAY TREES ARE ONE PLANT THAT LIVES UP TO ITS NAME — They go "all out" in the midst of May. Flowers are like a chokecherry, but bigger, and the scent fills the yard. This is my daughter Lyn's tree.
